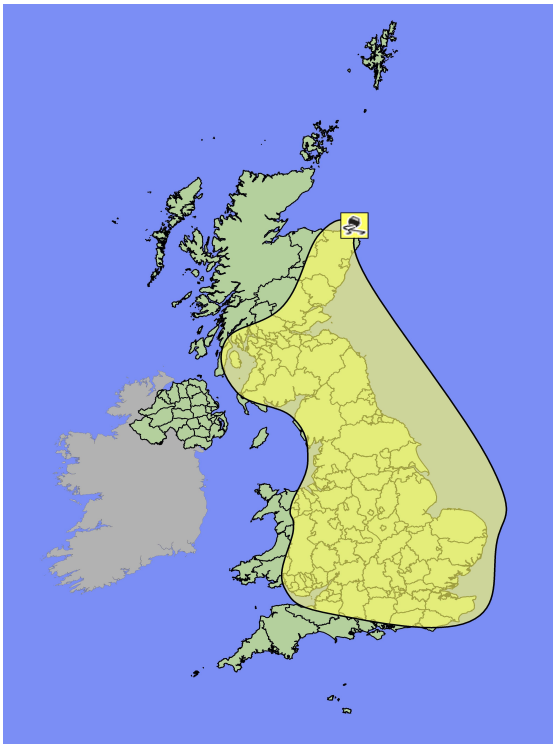
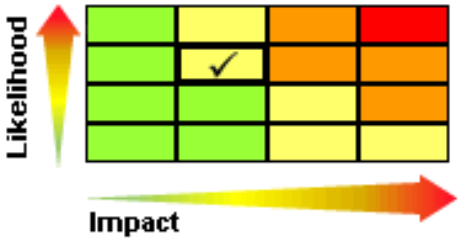
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
A front will continue its way northeastwards across the UK, weakening as it does so, but not completely displacing the cold air from the country. It will leave extensive areas of lying snow, the melting and refreezing of which is likely to lead to ice on roads.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Alert of Ice

Valid from 00:05 on Sat, 19th Jan 2013 until 12:00 on Sun, 20th Jan 2013

The band of snow will slowly weaken through Saturday with further accumulations over central and eastern areas of 5 cm or so in places. During the evening ice will form in many areas where there is snow cover, lasting into Sunday morning.

The public are advised to be aware of the continued risk of disruption to transport during this spell of wintry weather.
